WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA

The names in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA are selected not as the best but as an attempt to choose the best known men and women of the country in all lines of useful and reputable achievements.

NOTICE

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA is thoroughly revised, brought down, and reissued biennially. The next edition, (Vol. 17) will be for the years 1932-1933 and will be issued in 1932.

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA aims to give a brief, crisp personal sketch of every living American whose position or achievements make his personality of general interest, and tells just the things every intelligent person wants to know about those who are most conspicuous in every reputable walk of life.

A valuable feature of the book will be found in the address appended to each sketch. No other work has ever attempted the difficult task of finding and furnishing the addresses of leading Americans in all parts of the world. Thus, the book possesses not only the best attributes of a Biographical Dictionary, but is also a handy Directory of those living people of America in whom almost everybody is interested.

PREFACE

The present volume represents the Sixteenth biennial edition of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA, the first edition of which was published thirty years ago. During the years that have elapsed the book has settled well into its place, and seems now to be generally accepted as the premier biographical reference book of the United States. It seems, too, to be a necessity for almost every reasonably intelligent, well-informed person, and certainly a necessity for the man or woman who would keep abreast of modern America. This attainment is the fulfillment of an ambition which has been zealously cultivated from the beginning—an attainment that is exceedingly gratifying.

The first edition was published in 1899. A new and larger volume followed in 1901, two years later. The biennial publication thus begun has been continued without cessation to the present time.

This new edition contains life-sketches of 29,704 outstanding men and women of the country, a net increase of 899 sketches over its immediate predecessor (the edition for 1928-29) which carried a total of 28,805 life-sketches. It should be stated, however, that 3,498 sketches in this volume are new accessions to the enrollment, having appeared in no previous issue. The apparent discrepancy between the actual increase and the number of new sketches is accounted for by the death-roll of the biennium and by deletions for other obvious reasons. During the two-year interim, 1,497 members of the "Who's Who" family, which is a little under 750 each year, or slightly above 2½ per cent per annum, were taken by death.

The average age at the time of admission to WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA was 51 years, as is shown by the tabulation elsewhere in this volume, but it is fair to assume that the average age at the present time is much above this figure, as a majority have been continuously in the book for many years. This is a remarkable example of high longevity for the men and women who are leading in the affairs of the nation.

The omissions for other reasons comprise 1,102 names inclusion of which in the first instance was based upon arbitrary grounds alone, but which are no longer in the status which gained their admission—names not now sufficiently prominent in the public eye to justify continued inclusion. Among the causes for these omissions may be mentioned retirement from public office, when official position was the only ground for inclusion, and from private and public enterprises of major importance for similar reasons. A few were dropped because repeated requests for revision of personal data failed to elicit any response, and present addresses could not be ascertained.

The total number of names appearing in the previous edition, and omitted from the present volume is 2,599.

NOTE.—In the preface of a book of reference so long established and so well known as WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA, little can be said that is not practically a repetition of the introductory remarks contained in earlier editions. This preface is an adaptation, substantially, of the prefaces of earlier editions, the latest figures, of course, being substituted for the earlier ones.

(1914-15) inclusive, have been retained, and seekers for information contained in omitted sketches are referred to the volumes designated.

The asterisk (*) following a cross-reference indicates that the omission was made because the sketch could not be verified. When appended to a sketch, which is rarely the case, it signifies that the sketch has been retained without up-to-date revision.

The initial volume of "Who's Who" (1899-1900), containing 827 pages, grew into a portly volume of 3,712 pages (of the original dimensions) in 1924-25. The new format, with its greatly enlarged page and closely fitting type, was adopted for the 1926-27 edition. The volume contained 2,271 pages, whereas the present edition, with the continuation of the new form, contains 2,620 pages, an increase of 349 pages.

The first edition (1899-1900) contained 8,602 biographies, whereas the present edition contains more than 3½ times that number. If to the 29,704 sketches in this issue be added the 26,759 appearing in previous editions but omitted from time to time, a grand total of 56,463 biographical sketches will be available for ready reference to possessors of a complete file of Who's Who in America.

Each succeeding edition has presented sketches of living notables with such completeness as to make the book increasingly helpful for daily reference, while the old editions become increasingly valuable as records of those who have died, or whose sketches, for some other reason, have not been retained.

Appreciation of these dependable life-sketches has become more and more general, and today Who's Who in America is recognized as one of the indispensables of the reference shelf in all libraries—public, institutional and private—in newspaper offices and in editorial rooms generally, in business offices and homes, and in every place and on every occasion where information relative to outstanding living personages is to be desired.

Another fact which also is becoming more apparent as years pass, is the historical value of the past volumes. The new book of each biennium entirely supersedes its predecessor for up-to-date reference purposes, but the old volume, carefully preserved, will prove to be of constantly increasing reminiscent value. The library which has a file of the successive editions, from the first to the latest, will be a veritable treasure-house for future historians delving into records of the Twentieth Century.

It is doubtless true that the fitness of every name will not be apparent to every user of the book. The artist will expect the volume to be especially complete in the inclusion of fellow artists; the possessor of literary tastes will be disappointed if some author's name be missing; the scientist will miss names belonging to his own particular department of research. It is a fact, however, that while the standard of admission has from the first been high, there has been an unremitting effort to satisfy all reasonable expectations in regard to names included, and it can be stated with confidence that Who's Who in America has reached a stage of such completeness that very few contemporary Americans of a high rank of prominence will be missed from its pages.

Who's Who in America aims to include, as nearly as possible, brief life-sketches of the most notable living Americans in all parts of the world—the men and women whose positions or achievements make them subjects of wide inquiry if not of general interest. It tells just the things that are most frequently sought concerning the outstanding men and women in every useful and reputable walk of life, including place and date of birth, parentage, education, college degrees, marriage, children, occupation, principal achievements, politics, societies, clubs, address, etc.—in fact, the chief features of each career.

The volume also includes foreign ambassadors and ministers accredited to and residing, at least temporarily, in this country, and a few actors, singers and others who, by frequent visits to the United States, have become subjects of common American interest.

The rules in detail governing the admission of names may be found on page 17.

It has been the rule arbitrarily to include sketches of all officers of the Army above the rank of colonel and all officers of the Navy above the rank of captain. An exception was made in the 1918-1919 edition, on account of the World War, and colonels of the Army and captains of the Navy were also arbitrarily included. With publication of the edition for 1920-1921 the original rule was again adopted and sketches now appear only of officers of the Army above the rank of colonel and of officers of the Navy above the rank of captain, except for those who have attained special distinction not due alone to military or naval rank.

According to the U. S. Census, the population of the United States in 1900, when the first edition of Who's Who in America was issued, was 75,994,000. The number of sketches in the book was 8,602—a ratio of 1 to 8,824. In other words, the name of one person out of 8,824 of the total population of the country in 1900 appeared in the book. Taking the estimated population of the United States (120,000,000) in 1928, as a basis of computation, the "Who's Who" family as at present constituted—29,704 persons—represents a ratio of 1 to 4,040, or virtually one out of 4,000. Among the reasons which may be assigned for this increase of "Who's Who" personnel in proportion to population are the following: 1st, sketches of many eligibles were not obtainable for the earlier editions but have gradually been acquired for the later editions; 2d, the economic structure in the country, as the years pass, has become more complex, as a result of which the principal occupations and professions have been divided into branches which call for an increased number of outstanding exponents; 3d, the declaration that this is the age of the young man is often heard, and a critical examination of sketches in this volume indicates that the saying is not without significance. The sketches show that during recent years many young men have obtained positions of responsibility formerly held by representatives of the older generation, and are therefore entitled to recognition.

The compilations of statistics pertaining to the educational equipment of the persons mentioned in Who's Who in America which appeared in the first three editions (1899-1900, 1901-1902, and 1903-1905) and in the edition for 1910-1911 created a great deal of interest and it was not long till urgent requests began to come to the editor's desk that a similar study be undertaken. It was in response to these requests that a study was made of the edition for 1922-23, and printed in the edition for 1924-25 (Vol. 13). The tabulations there presented, with the deductions made from them, immediately became the subject of wide discussion which has continued with but slight abatement.

After the lapse of eight years, another but more exhaustive analysis of the book has been made. It relates to the edition for 1928-29, and may be found on pages 23 to 30, inclusive, of the present volume.

These new tabulations, comprising the results of a more extended inquiry than has hitherto been undertaken for this publication, possibly may furnish another fruitful basis for independent investigation.

The demonstrated usefulness of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA has extended to practically all classes of men and institutions, and the information which this book alone possesses makes it a practical necessity for almost every intelligent person. In educational institutions of all classes it has its recognized place, as a matter of course, and the rapidly increasing use of the book in the schoolroom is creating an interest not known before, in important personages and present-day events, and arousing a spirit of inquiry and emulation which cannot fail to prove of great practical benefit to the pupil in after life.

The best educational authorities recognize the value of high ideals, as exemplified in the lives of successful men and women, in shaping the aspirations of the growing mind. WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA is the only source to which teacher and student may turn, with assurance, for exact information pertaining to the careers of practically all of the most conspicuous living Americans. In the pages of this volume are mirrored the national life in all its various phases; the developments of science and industry; the marshaling of financial forces on a scale never before attempted; the building up of intelligence by the increasing magnificence and widening scope of educational facilities; the growing power of the Nation in military, naval and commercial strength; the development of literature and art; the ministry of the Gospel at home and abroad through American agencies; the progress and evolution of new social and political theories and potentialities. All these and other phases of American activity and progress are pictured through the life-sketches of the men and women who best represent them.

An attentive reading of this volume discloses many extraordinary examples of industry, which are overlooked in a cursory reading, but which, nevertheless, are full of valuable suggestion for the thoughtful mind. Many deeds of noble and beneficent achievement are recorded in these life-histories; and here also are chronicled thousands of activities which might be emulated with profit, not only by the youth of the country, but by all classes of American citizenship.

July 1, 1930

The invitation extended in former editions for the suggestion of new names has met with ready and cordial response. In this way many eligible names were brought to the attention of the editor, and were given a place in the book, provided the necessary data were procured. However, if a suggested name did not subsequently appear, the omission was not necessarily an indication that the name had been rejected, for there are still occasional instances of failure to respond to requests for the required facts, without which a sketch cannot be included. Sketches prepared from first-hand material only are acceptable.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR ADMISSION TO WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA

The standards of admission to WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA divide the eligibles into two classes: (1) those who are selected on account of special prominence in creditable lines of effort, making them the subjects of extensive interest, inquiry or discussion in this country; and (2) those who are arbitrarily included on account of official position—civil, military, naval, religious, or educational.

The first of these two classes comprises persons who have accomplished some conspicuous achievement—something out of the ordinary, so to speak—something which distinguishes them from the vast majority of their contemporaries. This class is confined to Americans, or those who are so prominently identified with American affairs as to be the subjects of wide inquiry or discussion in the United States. Thus a few foreign actors, singers, lecturers and others are included, who, by frequent visits to America, or in some other way, have become the subjects of common American interest. Names appear of those who are broadly prominent in some special field but who are little known in their own communities. The man of great achievement may be scarcely known at all in the particular locality in which he lives. The national character is frequently he whose work is better known than himself, and it is pertinent personal information concerning such an individual that WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA aims to gather and disseminate.

The arbitrary class embraces without regard to notability or prominence in any other respect, the following: All members of Congress; members of the Cabinet; all United States judges; all governors of States, Territories and island possessions of the United States; Federal department heads; all judges of State and Territorial Courts of highest appellate jurisdiction; all American ambassadors and ministers plenipotentiary, and all ambassadors and ministers accredited to this country; all American consuls at important places in foreign countries; all living American authors of books possessing more than ephemeral interest or value—books which have received a considerable degree of recognition by the general public or which have attained wide usage by special groups or classes, such as educational groups, scientific groups, literary groups, etc.; the attorneys general of the various States; all officers of the Army above the rank of colonel, and of the Navy above the rank of captain; heads of all the larger universities and colleges; heads of the leading societies devoted to philanthropic, educational and scientific aims; members of the National Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Design, the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the National Institute of Arts and Letters; bishops and chief ecclesiastics of all the larger religious denominations of the United States; and others who are in like manner chosen because of their official relations and affiliations.

To be sure, the majority of the names in the arbitrary classification would be admitted without hesitation even if they did not belong to the classification indicated, because of a personal record not at all dependent upon official position.

Not a single sketch in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA has been paid for—and none can be paid for.

In the foregoing table are listed the 55 States and Territories of the United States, including Alaska, Danish West Indies—Virgin Islands (acquired in 1917), Territory of Hawaii, Porto Rico, The District of Columbia, the Philippine Islands, the Canal Zone, and 87 foreign countries or their dependencies as locations of the birth or residence of persons whose names appear in the present volume.

Of the total number of 29,704 names listed, 26,742, or 90.03 per cent, are natives of the United States; 2,680, or 9.02 per cent, are of foreign birth; 9 were born at sea, and 273 do not report as to the place of birth. For the sake of comparison, it may be stated that of persons whose names appear in the last previous edition (1928-29) 89.77 per cent were native and 9.3 per cent were foreign born.

A glance at the table shows that the older settled states, containing the centres of population, largely predominate as the birthplaces of people whose names appear in Who's Who in America. In proportion to population, the Atlantic States rank very high, while states north of the Ohio River have contributed generously to the list. New York State occupies the premier position with 3,691 names, followed by Pennsylvania, with 2,304; Massachusetts, 2,189; Ohio, 2,133; Illinois, 1,829; Indiana, 1,015; Iowa, 932; Missouri, 832; Michigan, 823; Wisconsin, 809; Virginia, 754; New Jersey, 650; Connecticut, 642; Kentucky, 568; Maryland, 532; Maine, 514; Tennessee, 507; North Carolina, 479; California, 455; Georgia, 383; Minnesota, 380; Alabama, 359; Kansas, 352; South Carolina, 351; Texas, 334; New Hampshire, 321; Vermont, 307; Mississippi, 256; Rhode Island, 248; West Virginia, 242; District of Columbia, 235; Nebraska, 207; Louisiana, 188; Arkansas, 157; Utah, 115; Colorado, 104; Delaware, 101. The remaining states have each less than 100 names.

As to the number of residents, New York State stands first with 5,855; Massachusetts, 2,075; Illinois, 1,990; Pennsylvania, 1,862; California, 1,805; District of Columbia, 1,544; Ohio, 1,141; New Jersey, 1,015; Connecticut, 867; Missouri, 708; Michigan, 587; Maryland, 578; Texas, 515; Minnesota, 509; Virginia, 488; Indiana, 447; Wisconsin, 427; Tennessee, 413; North Carolina, 405; Georgia, 386; Iowa, 368; Colorado, 326; Kentucky, 310; Washington, 307; Alabama, 277; Oklahoma, 272; Kansas, 260; Florida, 255; Nebraska, 250; Rhode Island, 235; Maine, 227; West Virginia, 208; South Carolina, 207; New Hampshire and Louisiana 194 each; Oregon, 186; Arkansas, 137; Vermont, 131; South Dakota, 126; Mississippi, 121; Arizona, 110; Montana, 109; Utah, 108; New Mexico, 105.

The table shows that 29,148 have their permanent homes in the United States, while 473 reside in foreign countries, and 83 give no address. Of those living abroad, 116 have their homes in France, 53 in England, 44 in Canada, 39 in China, and 30 in Italy. These residents of foreign countries are principally representatives of the United States Government, business men temporarily abroad, and missionaries of the various churches.

Of the foreign born who have cast their lot with the United States, Canada is credited with 614; England, 479; Germany, 316; Scotland, 135; Russia, 129; Ireland, 113; Sweden, 95; France 74; Italy, 67; Norway, 55; Austria, 54. Others furnishing more than 20 are Switzerland, 43; India, 41; Hungary, 35; Poland, 34; Holland, 32; Denmark, 30; Australia and Wales 27 each; Turkey, 22.

EDUCATIONAL AND SOCIOLOGICAL STATISTICS

A Study of the Educational Equipment and Other Sociological Factors Pertaining to the People Listed in Who's Who in America

Based on the Edition for 1928-29

There has been no diminution of the widespread interest created by the statistical disclosures which from time to time have appeared in Who's Who in America. In fact the interest has expanded from edition to edition and has become more general. The educational advantages in particular enjoyed by the people biographically sketched in "Who's Who," as shown by the tables, have provided a theme of continuous comment and discussion. Educational and scientific journals, newspapers and magazines, in larger numbers, both in America and abroad, have reviewed the figures presented in these summaries as illuminating the value of higher education as a preliminary to the successful career.

With these facts in mind it seemed timely to make an analysis of the educational equipment of the members of the enlarged "Who's Who" family and to extend the study to other sociological factors, with the hope of casting still another ray of light on the value of education as a factor in life-success.

An analytical tabulation of the educational equipment and sociological data pertaining to the "Who's Who" family at the present time should have an exceptionally practical value to the educator as well as to the young man or woman who is balancing the advantages of further education against present earning power. Education, and its value to the individual, will always be a problem for each person to solve for himself, and should be studied especially with reference to personal fitness and adaptability. The general results of so wide an examination as the one here presented cannot fail to interest all who have at heart the permanent welfare of the individual, as well as that of society as a whole.

Because of the exacting discrimination exercised in the inclusion of names, Who's Who in America presents, if not an ideal group of personages, at least what is generally recognized as the best available group for an inquiry of this character. Inclusion of a name in the book is in itself recognition of a considerable measure of worthy achievement; and it is reasonable to assume that the educational attainment observable throughout the volume is most conducive to creditable notability in the various departments of useful endeavor. If higher education is a handicap rather than a help, as is sometimes claimed, then it should tend to keep the highly educated from leadership. If, on the other hand, the well-educated are most freely represented in Who's Who in America, the conclusion is inescapable that education pays.

The study applies to the 28,805 men and women sketched in the 1928-29 edition of Who's Who in America. It should be explained, however, that 1,814 failed to furnish sufficient educational data for classification. Of the latter, 367 were educated at home or received their education in private schools, while 394 specialized in the arts, 39 were self-educated, and 1,014 gave no educational data.

The percentages shown in the tabulation are therefore based on the 26,991 personal sketches containing adequate educational details—university, college, technical school, normal school, U. S. Military Academy, U. S. Naval Academy, seminary, academy, high school, common school. In making the tabulation, the highest educational attainment was recorded for each person and no distinction was made between large or small institutions. It should be borne in mind, therefore, that the graduate of a college was probably also a graduate of a common school, a high school, an academy or a preparatory school. Frequently, also, the holder of the degree of Master of Arts subsequently earned the LL.B. in law, or the bachelor's degree in divinity; and the holder of the M.D. often also earned a Ph.D. or a D.Sc. Honorary degrees were not considered in the tabulation.

Of the 26,991 persons furnishing educational statistics for the 1928-29 edition of Who's Who in America, 19,342, or 71.66 per cent, reported graduation from schools conferring baccalaureate degrees in philosophy, letters, the arts, divinity, law or science. If to this number (19,342) be added the 240 graduates of the U. S. Military Academy, the 181 graduates of the U. S. Naval Academy, and the 111 graduates of normal schools of collegiate standing, the total number of college graduates becomes 19,874 or 73.63 per cent of all those furnishing educational data. The figures show an increase of practically 10 per cent in collegiate status (college graduates) of the "Who's Who" family (1928-29) over the tabulation of the 1922-23 edition (Vol. 12).

The Value of Education

This chart illustrates at a glance the relative educational equipment of the 26,991 persons furnishing educational data in the 1928-29 edition of Who's Who in America. Collegians numbered 22,966 or about 85 per cent of the total. The significant feature of the chart is that whereas there are 19,874 college graduates named in the volume, the number reporting a common school education only is 1,795. What better proof that education pays?

received the degree of doctor of medicine, surgery or dentistry, etc., so that the total number receiving a doctor's degree was 6,865 or 25.43 per cent. It would seem therefore, that in academic and professional lines, at least, the probability of success—if measured by inclusion in Who's Who in America—greatly increases with increased educational training. This is shown by the fact that while the total percentage of doctors of medicine, law, science, letters, philosophy, etc., is less than the percentage of those who stopped with a bachelor's degree, the group from which the doctors are drawn is so much smaller that the advantage is plainly apparent. The proportion also holds good in so far as holders of a master's degree are concerned.

The number attending institutions of college standing but not graduating was 3,092, or 11.45 per cent. The total number of collegians (graduates and non-graduates) was therefore 22,966, or 85.09 per cent. This total is approximately 8 per cent greater than the figures derived from the examination of the 1922-23 edition, which showed 77.36 per cent.

It is apparent, therefore, that 85 of each 100 persons furnishing educational data for the 1928-29 edition attended college, and that 73 of each 100 were graduated.

One of the noticeable differences in the totals appearing in the educational statistics of Who's Who in America during years past is the growth in percentage of the college-trained as compared with those who never attended college. The first four tabulations, ranging from 1899 to 1911, showed that of those who supplied educational data, collegians represented 69 to 71 per cent of the names, or that about 70 out of 100 had received college training. The volume for 1916-17, with a greater number of names, disclosed an increase to 72.88 per cent, while the edition for 1922-23, with 22,075 names, gave a further increase to 77.36 per cent in ratio of collegians. The highest percentage of all is shown in the tabulation of the 28,805 names listed in the 1928-29 edition, 85.09 per cent of those reporting educational data in that edition having attended college. This growth is doubtless due to the fact that the steadily increasing complexity of the social and economic structure of modern life demands more highly educated leaders, the standards of admission to Who's Who in America having remained the same from the first.

One thousand and sixty-three (1,063), or 3.93 per cent, of the persons who furnished general educational statistics, concluded their scholastic training in secondary schools (minor colleges, academies, seminaries, preparatory schools, etc.); of these 280 were graduates and 783 non-graduates; 934 (a slightly less number), or 3.46 per cent, concluded their education in high school; 283, or .86 per cent, reported final training in commercial schools or business colleges. There were 1,795 persons (6.65 per cent) who received only a common school education, making the total of those with no college training, 4,025, or 14.91 per cent. It should be remembered, in considering this percentage, that its relative size is no indictment of the public school system, since the greater proportion of those reporting higher education had received preliminary training in the public schools.

Statistics pertaining to the preliminary education of members of the leading professions appear in the edition for 1910-11 (Vol. VI). They show the ratio of college graduates and non-graduates as compared with those whose preliminary training was acquired in the common or preparatory schools.

INDEPENDENT STUDY OF NEW SKETCHES

For the purpose, mainly, of ascertaining whether the educational status of the later admissions to Who's Who in America corresponds with the findings pertaining to the earlier inclusions in the volume, the 3,931 sketches which appeared for the first time in Who's Who in America (1928-29) were segregated and subjected to a searching independent analysis. If a comparison of this special study be made with the educational study of all the sketches in the book, it will readily be seen that the results, in so far as the investigations parallel each other, are almost identical. This striking closeness in agreement of the results obtained would seem to be ample proof of the correctness of the methods employed and of the reliability of the findings, so that, although the percentages in both instances are based entirely upon sketches containing adequate data, if all sketches had contained complete data the percentages might safely be extended to cover the total personnel in the book. A tabulation of the findings is presented under the following captions: (1) "Sociological Statistics of the 3,931 New Sketches in Who's Who in America for 1928-29" and (2) "Educational Data Based on the 3,931 New Sketches in Who's Who in America for 1928-29."

However, the study of these later accessions goes into greater detail than the general study pertaining especially to educational status. It includes not only the educational equipment of the persons sketched, but also various details pertaining to occupations, marriage status, age at time of inclusion in Who's Who in America, number of children to the family, etc., which may be of special interest to students of sociology and other investigators.

The occupations represented in the study of new names cover the more important fields of endeavor. The business group comprises 864 names, or 21.98 per cent of the new names. Of these 205 represent manufacturers, 175 publishers, 160 bankers, and 324 represent business and professional occupations too diversified to list in detail. Educators come next in the table, numbering 707, or 17.98 per cent; then follow 498 clergymen, 12.66 per cent; 308 lawyers, 7.83 per cent; 254 editors, 6.46 per cent; 229 public officials, 5.82 per cent; 216 engineers, 5.49 per cent; 205 writers, 5.21 per cent; 157 physicians and surgeons, 3.99 per cent; 131 artists, 3.33 per cent; 99 scientists, 2.52 per cent; 57 architects, 1.45 per cent; 48 Army or Navy officers, 1.22 per cent; 158 miscellaneous, 4.02 per cent. Thus it will be seen that the business men represent about one in every five of the entire list, the educators one in every six, clergymen one in every eight and that lawyers comprise about one in every twelve.

Figures bearing upon age at the time of admission to Who's Who in America are not so widely apart as might be expected. There are only a few who awake, as did Byron, to find themselves famous. General recognition for "Who's Who" honors is in nearly all instances gradually attained. If the date of inclusion represents recognition of worthwhile achievement, then the period between graduation, or the termination of scholastic education, and inclusion in "Who's Who," may be regarded as an index of the opportunities inherent in each occupation. This period for educators is 17.54 years, and for scientists, 19.84 years. More time to arrive at general recognition is required by others. Writers, according to the tabulation, require 22 years, editors, 24.1, doctors of medicine and surgery, 25.04, artists, 25.95 years and lawyers, 29.67, while the business man requires 31.29 years, and officers of the Army and Navy, 35.2 years. The reason for this advanced period of admission for officers of the Army and Navy is the application of the arbitrary rule by which the "Who's Who" list is restricted to officers of the Army above the rank of colonel and officers of the Navy above the rank of captain. Exceptions, however, are made for special distinction not due alone to military or naval rank.

Of the 3,931 new names, 3,764 represent men, and 167 represent women. The youngest person, an artist, was 23 years of age at the time of admission, while a writer and clergyman, each 90 years of age, stood at the other extreme. The average age of admission for these 3,931 persons was 51.17 years. By comparison of these figures with the findings of earlier volumes it will be seen that the average age at the time of admission to Who's Who in America is slightly above fifty years. Hence, it is apparent that the requisite degree of eminence for inclusion in the "Who's Who" roster of American notables is achieved by the majority after the half-century milestone has been passed.

The percentage of married persons in the tabulation, the age at marriage, and the average number of children present an attractive study. In this connection the question is frequently asked, sometimes with misgivings, whether the "Who's Who" family will be continuously perpetuated. Were it not for the fact that the "Who's Who" roster is continually augmented by new accessions—people who are not children of "Who's Who" parentage—the future might seem to present a serious problem to society, as the tabulation shows the general average in the families to be only 2.1 children. The table also shows that the average marriage age of the 3,931 new accessions to "Who's Who" was 28.44 years. This is considerably above the average for the general population, although it should be noted that even in the "Who's Who" family the range of marriage age is from 15 to 65 years. At any rate those who hold that marriage is conducive to success must admit that the case is not proved for early marriages, since the average "Who's Who" personage waited 3.48 years after embarking on his career at 24.96 years of age.

That marriage is influenced by economic considerations will be apparent to any person who studies the figures here given. There is the banker, for instance, who graduates at the age of 21.65 yet waits till he is 28.28 before marrying. The writer finishes his schooling at the age of 23 and marries at the age of 27.45 years. The clergyman who frequently begins his lifework before graduation (at the age of 24.02) marries at 27.64. The tabulation shows that the scientist marries after the shortest interim—barely three months—no doubt due to the fact that in his case early professional practice and the attainment of higher education are coincident.

Just what relationship exists between early and late marriage and the size of the family is a topic attended by considerable conjecture. The figures are not conclusive. There are but two groups, as shown in the table, with an average marriage age of less than the 27.64 years of clergymen. These groups are the editors at 27.33 years, and the writers at 27.45, yet both of these groups have a lower birth rate than the clergymen. At the top of the list for late marriage are the architects, who usually marry at 31.8 years, and average 2.12 children.

Artists show the least tendency toward reproduction, with 1.11 children to the family, while writers have an average of 1.47 children. Clergymen head the list with 2.86, and bankers come second with 2.51. Physicians and surgeons, with 2.16 children per family, are fourth in the list, regarded from the standpoint of number of children in the family, indicating that a knowledge of birth-control is not necessarily the only determining factor in regulating the size of the family.

Study of the life-sketches of the 167 women which appear for the first time in Who's Who in America, shows that 97, or 58.08 per cent of the women are married. To this group have been born 122 children, an average of 1.27 children per family.

The educational background of the groups considered in the foregoing is presented in detail in the tabulations on page 26.

Special attention is called to the significance of some of the figures. A summary shows that 49 persons furnished no educational data; 348, or 8.96 per cent of the total number reporting educational data, received only a common school education or its equivalent; 310, or 7.99 per cent, were educated in high schools, academies or preparatory schools, so that the total of those with less than college training was 658, or 16.95 per cent, as against 3,224 or 83.05 per cent who had the advantage of college training. Of the latter, 568 attended college but were not graduated; 1336 were awarded A.B., B.S. or corresponding degrees; 615 received masters' degrees, and 705 were made doctors of philosophy, science or medicine. Physicians show the highest percentage of college training—100 per cent. Educators, of whom 702 furnished educational data, come next with 98.9 per cent; clergymen, 498, are a fraction lower—98.4 per cent; while artists, 129, are credited with but 59 per cent. In the case of artists, however, it should be stated that specialized art training is usually equivalent to a course in college.

These figures are especially significant when considered in connection with the statement in the U. S. Census that 4.55 per cent of the population of the United States above the age of 21 is college-trained. This means that at the present time 4.55 per cent of the total population of the country provides the 83.05 per cent of the outstanding personages listed in Who's Who in America. It means also that the remaining 95.45 per cent of the population of the country contributes only 16.95 per cent of "Who's Who" notables.

It is well known that the standard of eminence required for inclusion in Who's Who in America is not based on the financial status of the individual, yet the relation between eminence on one hand and monetary success on the other is very close, generally indicating outstanding achievement and substantial financial reward.

Space limitations do not permit of further scrutiny of the facts presented in the tabulations. A more extensive study of the tables would doubtless be productive of conclusions of much interest not only to researchers in educational and sociological fields but also to the public generally.

¶ Notwithstanding the fact that the value of each edition of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA for up-to-date reference in regard to the living notables of the country is entirely supplanted by the succeeding new edition, the old volumes gain, year by year, in historical and reminiscent usefulness. The latest volume will, of course, always present the living with such increased completeness as to be indispensable for daily reference, yet the old editions become more and more valuable as records of those who have died, many of which it would be difficult, if not impossible, to find elsewhere. This fact is meeting with wide recognition, so that public, institutional and private libraries are keeping the old volumes as a series of the utmost value for presenting, with a completeness nowhere else attainable, the biographical history of the United States and all its varied interests and activities.

You should keep a complete file of Who's Who in America — from the first volume to the latest. If you have not procured the earlier volumes, BEGIN NOW.
